NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

We learn that Forrest, after failing to attack Pulaski took the road toward Fayetteville, and was pursued about nine miles by our cavalry. Gen. Kossan is returning with his infantry to Nashville. A Nashville dispatch dated Wednesday evening, says that during the night Gen. Forrest withdrew his whole force from the vicinity of Pulaski, and he is believed to have crossed the Chattanooga Railroad. Gen. Ross reports that the Rebel loss during yesterday night was about 200, and 20 prisoners were captured. The Rebels seem to have done considerable damage to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad.

We have Port Royal dates to the 26th. The Rebel officers sent there to be placed under fire, in retaliation for acts by the Rebels, are comfortably located on Morris Island, and are guarded by the 54th Massachusetts (Colored Regiment). Charleston is said by despatches to be suffering seriously from the effects of some new gales brought to bear a few days ago. The Rebels have twenty-five hundred men at work on the defenses of the city, repairing and strengthening old works, and constructing new ones.

Mr. John G. Nicolay, the President's Private Secretary, who was recently drafted in Washington, though erroneously enrolled, being subject to military duty, not in the District, but at his home in Illinois, which has more than filled its quota, and being at the same time incapacitated by illness from serving, has sent a substitute to the enrolling office, who was duly accepted and mustered in.

Official dispatches from the Secretary of War report on the authority of Richmond papers, that Sheridan's cavalry entered Stanton on Monday, at 8 a.m., and that the Union forces were also at Wayneboro. Secretary Stanton adds that no direct communication had been had with Sheridan for several days, some of his couriers having been captured by guerrillas.

News from Pilot Knob, Mo., to the 27th, at noon, says that our troops had concentrated in front of the Rebels. The latter had captured some property, and planted a battery on Shepherd Mount, which throws shells into the fort. On Tuesday night, Col. Mills, at Mineral Point, repulsed a large body of Rebels, after which he withdrew to De Soto. About 12,000 militia have been put under arms at St. Louis.

Secretary Stanton says: "The draft is quietly progressing in all the States, but volunteer enlistments being more speedy than the draft, all loyal and patriotic people should urge forward rapid enlistments in order to reinforce Sherman and enable him not only to hold his position, but also without delay to push on his campaign."

The War Department has decided that a drafted man may turn a substitute after he has been accepted and is in camp. When the substitute is accepted the government will discharge the drafted man and permit him to return to his home.

Rebel papers say that Jeff. Davis has gone to visit Hood's army. It is more likely that he is on his way to inspect the Mexican works on the west bank of the Rio Grande.

News from Sherman is to 24 on Wednesday night. No movements are reported. The Rebels will make desperate efforts to drive Sherman from Atlanta by destroying his railroad communications.

Gen. Hooker has been assigned to an important command West, and leaves at once.

GENERAL NEWS.

Mayor Gunther yesterday vetoed the resolution of the Common Council authorizing an illumination of the public buildings of the city, and requesting him to issue a proclamation inviting our citizens to join in the illumination in honor of our recent victories, and at the same time thanking our soldiers and sailors. The Mayor says that the war is not for the Union; that the authorities claim that the victories are due to the Emancipation Proclamation. He also says that according to the Administration papers the victories are to be continued, and for the same reason that this illumination should be made the city might be kept constantly illuminated. The Mayor thinks it would be better to wait for a time, or until the end of the war should be nearer.

Mrs. Francisco Hoefler, a young German lady, mysteriously disappeared on Saturday last from Norwich, Conn. Her body was found on Monday in the Setauket River. The Coroner's inquest rendered a verdict that she came to her death from unknown causes. There is much excitement, as the affair is wrapped in mystery. The general opinion is that a murder has been committed.

A spirited Union meeting was held at Hudson, N. Y., on Wednesday evening. Thomas G. Alvord, the Union nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, Gen. Burted, R. F. Andrews, and others, spoke with great enthusiasm.

The woolen mill of Sidney Solms, of Philadelphia, was partly burned yesterday morning. Loss $60,000, which is fully insured.

The Board of Councilmen met on Thursday, and did a considerable amount of business of a general nature. Adjourned till Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Gold was feverish and weak yesterday. The opening rate was 107, receding to 106, followed by a rally to 106, and closing at 106. At the quotations there are few new operations for an advance. Stocks are a little steady, and in better demand, but a good degree of the activity was caused by purchases to cover short contracts. Government Securities are steady for all gold bearing descriptions. Certificates are still wanted, and 90 has been paid for large lots, and a higher for small amounts. Some of the Miscellaneous Shares were quite active. At the Second Board the market was dull at lower rates. The whole railway share list was offered freely. Money was abundant at 1 per cent on call, and stock buyers are over-supplied at the rate. Mercantile bills were neglected, and the preference was given to Certificates at 95.

The Hon. Isaac N. Arnold, M. C., from Chicago, Ill., will speak, under the auspices of the National Union Committee, at Buffalo—On Saturday evening, Oct. 1. Lockport—On Monday evening, Oct. 2.

A brief dispatch from Gen. Grant announces a new movement on the James, on the North side of the river. The fortifications and intrenchments carried by Gen. Ord, below Chapin's Farm, are on that bend of the river next below Fort Darling, marked on the map as Chapin's Bluff. Deep Bottom, whence Gen. Birney advanced at the same time, is at the bend making what is called Jones Neck. Carrying the intrenchments on the New-Market Road, which is the direct road to Richmond, he had advanced, when Gen. Grant left, to the intersection of the Mill Road, the forces of the two Generals, Ord and Birney, being thus about equi-distant and about seven miles from Richmond. Gen. Ord's is on the Osborne Turnpike, and this and the New-Market Road converge to a point about three miles from the city. Gen. Birney was still advancing at the date of the dispatch. Gen. Ord's success was signal, as he took fifteen pieces of artillery, and from two to three hundred prisoners; Gen. Birney's was no less so, though he took few prisoners, as the enemy scattered in too much haste to permit it.

We have, as yet, probably, only a part of the movement contemplated by Gen. Grant. It is obviously improper to speculate upon its character, as that will develop itself in due season. It is enough to say that it is offensive, and not defensive, and that a fresh and terrible blow will be given to the Rebellion if it is successful. If, on the other hand, the Rebel works shall be strong enough to baffle an assault, or their forces capable of resisting the onward progress of the Army of the Potomac, it can only be for a brief season.

VIOLENCE IN POLITICS.

We appeal to patriots, and to good men irrespective of party, to unite in energetic, emphatic discouragement of all violent exhibitions of political feeling, and especially of all interference with political meetings, processions, &c., &c. No matter if the speakers do misrepresent and calumniate those whom you deem the best and greatest men in the country—no matter though they preach treason and rebellion—it is not your business to stop them—any, you have no right to do it. Every man is responsible for his acts and his words to lawful authority, not to mob violence. If a speaker lies, choose a proper time and place to refute him; but you have no right to do it in his time and place. If a party meeting is called, its platform is not free to members of the adverse party, unless they be specially invited thereto. They are invited to listen, not to teach, nor to interrupt. And, if you don't like what is said by the invited speakers, you are at perfect liberty to go (or stay) away.

Some persons seem to cherish a vague notion that they have a mission to expose all the sophistry, refute all the falsehood, and rebuke all the sedition they may chance to hear—a most mischievous and dangerous assumption. You are not called to notice in any manner objectionable remarks not specially addressed to and reflecting upon yourself. In fact, too much consequence is usually given to false or blundering assertions. They soon pass out of mind, if well let alone. Gen. Fremont, when a candidate for President, was the target of a steady fire of personal detraction, such as few men ever encountered. He said nothing in reply; his friends said very little; yet we doubt that he lost one vote for every million lies told to his prejudice. And now President Lincoln is assailed with equally furious and senseless scurrility. His friends rarely notice the attacks of his traducers; and it were wiser never to dignify them by even a kick. Leave them to sink into the gutters whence they have been raked, there to perish and be forgotten.

The United States are at war with a formidable, determined Rebellion based on devotion to Slavery. ABRAHAM LINCOLN and ANDREW JOHNSON are the chosen candidates for President and Vice-President of those who hold that the Rebellion was causeless, wanton, wicked, and ought to be given up or put square down. George B. McClellan and George H. Pendleton are the rival candidates of those who hold that the Rebellion provoked, impelled, excusable, and would have it bought off, or compromised with, by new concessions, new guarantees to Slavery, so that the Rebel chiefs, (if they can be induced to return to the Union), shall come back and resume the Government of our country with the part and bearing of an heir who has been kept for years out of his estate by the false pretenses of a rival and the chicanery of rascally attorneys. Here is a grand, broad, vital issue, in view of which Mr. Lincoln's sorriest jokes and Gen. McClellan's still sorrier speeches become of no account whatever. We oppose Gen. McClellan because of our conviction that he does not want the Rebellion put square down, and never did, even when he was in command of the Union army. We oppose Mr. Pendleton because he has at all times and under all circumstances maintained a position of courteous and dignified, statesmanlike and manly, but most determined and effective opposition to the War for the Union. We infer from his public career that he esteems Slavery righteous, natural, beneficent, and is doing his best to strengthen and perpetuate it. Like Horatio Seymour, he would rather have the Union divided than see Slavery overthrown; unlike Seymour, he walks uprightly, speaks frankly, and goes on his wrong course with the air of a man whose course is guided by his convictions. He is in politics our natural, deadly antagonist, whom we can respect even while we want determinedly oppose him.

Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson embody and represent the spirit of unflinching antagonism to the Rebellion—to its spirit, its aims, and its means—and they are supported for this reason, on this ground opposed. They will be voted for by all who sympathize with this antagonism, and voted against by all who do not; and all the smut and slang of a Presidential contest will not change fifty votes either way. Convince men that they ought or ought not to incline this way or that on the Main Question, and you may change their votes; but no personal attack on any of the candidates will subvert any important end. And yet such attacks are among the most obvious incitements to the collisions and mob outrages so much to be deprecated.

We call upon the clergy of all denominations to preach against such outrages, no matter on what pretext or by whomsoever committed; we call on the press to remonstrate against them, and to denounce all who incite or engage in them; we call on the People of all parties to condemn them and hold all who embark in, or countenance them, to a stern responsibility. We have quite enough lawless violence and blood-thirsty feud in the land already; but let us all resolve that, in the loyal States, and throughout the region unscathed by the bloody footsteps of open rebellion, not only on the day of election but at all times, before and afterward, the laws shall be respected and the public peace preserved.

THE WILMINGTON BLOCKADE.

The Rebel corsair Tallahassee—not very formidable, but very swift—recently ran out of Wilmington, cruised leisurely up our coast to the St. John, capturing, plundering and burning the little craft of inoffensive fishermen, pilots, &c., &c., with the passenger ship Adriatic and other valuable vessels; then ran into Halifax, cooled, and straight back to Wilmington again. A great number of swift and strong steamships were sent after her, none of which did her any harm—the Pontoon, we have heard, lying twenty-four hours in harbor at Calais or thereabout for fear she might. A glorifying account of the Tallahassee's triumphal progress was recently published in the Richmond Dispatch, whence we copy the following account of her running the blockade of Wilmington on her return:

"We are now on the coast and in the cruising ground of the Rebels, but no coasters are in sight."

"Last evening two sailers were reported, neither of them steamers. The air is very smoky, and there is every prospect of a successful run. At sunset, look soundings between thirty and forty miles off, we saw a small vessel, and in order to make the lights on shore about 9 o'clock. A little later than that hour they were distinguished, and we went slowly along, until the moonlight vertical lights were made out. The vessel was a schooner, and we gave chase. She was under full sail, and we ran down across her bows, then going at full speed, and headed in. In half an hour, we had him abeam, and received the first shot. Another followed, and then we replied with the aft pivot gun. It was a good shot, and the Rebels were completely bewildered. For five minutes he showed signals and threw rockets, but fired no more. We gave him three shots, and turned to another bearing down upon us. Two shots were received from this before we replied, and the other, he immediately steamed away without replying to our guns. We went straight through the first going about twelve knots an hour. One more comes up, and is within five hundred yards before he is discovered. A shot that passes over us is the first intimation we have of his presence. Both of which go wide of the mark, and then turn away as our guns open fire in return. Not a shot came in reply, and no desire is shown to come in closer quarters. We fire at once, and the other, he immediately steamed away without replying to our guns.
